

RURAL PARTNERSHIP OFFERING

Joining Hands - Egypt

Joining Hands began in 2000 as an initiative of the Presbyterian Hunger Program. It is a global ministry against hunger and poverty, linking US congregations and presbyteries with overseas networks of churches, nonprofit organizations, community groups and other faith traditions to work for peaceful social change. The Presbytery of Des Moines is partnered with the Joining Hands network in Egypt.

Following the Egyptian revolution in January and February of 2011, our partner network revised its focus and goals for the year. With parliamentary elections scheduled for September, they are working at the community level to raise awareness among youth, women, men and even children regarding legal, political, social, and civil rights. Their work could not be more important.

The goals of all Joining Hands partnerships include empowering leadership to effect change, and working against the root causes of hunger that charity will never solve. One-third of the Rural Partnership Offering supports the work of Joining Hands-Egypt.

El Salvador & Rural Iowa

One-third of the Rural Partnership Offering helps to fund Des Moines Presbytery's 20-year partnership in El Salvador. One-third supports rural projects and programs in Iowa, a special ministry of the presbytery for the past 33 years.

RURAL PARTNERSHIP OFFERING

Joining Hands - Egypt

Joining Hands began in 2000 as an initiative of the Presbyterian Hunger Program. It is a global ministry against hunger and poverty, linking US congregations and presbyteries with overseas networks of churches, nonprofit organizations, community groups and other faith traditions to work for peaceful social change. The Presbytery of Des Moines is partnered with the Joining Hands network in Egypt.

Following the Egyptian revolution in January and February of 2011, our partner network revised its focus and goals for the year. With parliamentary elections scheduled for September, they are working at the community level to raise awareness among youth, women, men and even children regarding legal, political, social, and civil rights. Their work could not be more important.

The goals of all Joining Hands partnerships include empowering leadership to effect change, and working against the root causes of hunger that charity will never solve. One-third of the Rural Partnership Offering supports the work of Joining Hands-Egypt.

El Salvador & Rural Iowa

One-third of the Rural Partnership Offering helps to fund Des Moines Presbytery's 20-year partnership in El Salvador. One-third supports rural projects and programs in Iowa, a special ministry of the presbytery for the past 33 years.